Don't Risk Ice...

What are my obligations as a business owner?

If you are a commercial landowner or a private business operator, by law you have a (duty of care) for the safety and wellbeing of any person whom enters onto your property.

It is also your legal responsibility to take adequate measures to ensure their safety and wellbeing.

Why adopt a winter gritting service?

Some business owners hope for a mild winter and do not adequately prepare for what could directly affect the trade and day to day operations of their business.

With the rise in global warming not only has this caused our summers to be much warmer but also our winters to be much, much colder; and with cold comes ice.

Ice!

When ice forms on the ground it poses a significant danger to members of the public or staff slipping and causing personal injury. Ice can also affect the handling and control of a vehicle which in result increases the risk of accidents. If left untreated ice can become so slippery to the point where it can even prevent customers or delivery vehicles from entering your premises.

Why do it all by yourself when you can work with a professional company?

If you are a business owner or manager you may have contemplated or even attempted going out in the bitter cold of day or night with a small bucket of salt to grit your property by yourself only for it to take much longer than originally thought and to end up with only 60% ground coverage. Do not worry you are not the first.

We use high grade de-icing salt with state-of-the-art gritting vehicles capable of spreading salt over 10 square metres per second, meaning we can have your property gritted quicker and more effectively with as little inconvenience as possible.

We monitor for ice warnings and get advanced weather reports from local authorities which enables us to react quicker and grit your property reliably and yet only whenever it is necessary. When temperatures fall below zero degrees celsius also known as (freezing point), we spread out salt on roads and access ways before the ice or snow begins to fall and settle.

Service whenever you require

We understand that you and your staff have other responsibilities. Ensuring that your business is protected from ice and remains uninterrupted and unaffected over the winter months takes a lot of time and commitment. That is why we remain on standby and provide our gritting service if necessary, even on bank holidays.
